

Kuala Lumpur, 8 March - This week MJIT receives guests from University of Tsukuba for an academic visit. 7 Masters students are from the Graduate School of Environmental and Life Sciences (1st year and 2nd year), while the other two are undergraduate students. Besides taking part in the weekly Metabolic Engineering and Molecular Biology (MemoBio) rinkou, they also went to Universiti Putra Malaysia (UPM). At UPM they visited Institute of Tropical Agriculture and Biorefinery Complex (Faculty of Biotechnology and Science Biomoleculu). Yesterday they visited Forest Reserve Institute of Malaysia (FRIM) and University of Malaya (UM). Today they will join the Joint Degree Program Workshop between University of Tsukuba and MJIT, Universiti Teknologi Malaysia (UTM), at the Kuala Lumpur Campus.

Tomorrow the students shall visit Asahi Company in Kuala Lumpur and later in the afternoon they will go to Sime Darby Biodiesel Company in Carey Island, Selangor.

From left: Prof. Sugiura, Prof. Iwane and Dr. Iwamoto with the University of Tsukuba's students.

Discussion session

Group photo after the workshop ended this evening.