

Joint Supervision at Tsukuba University

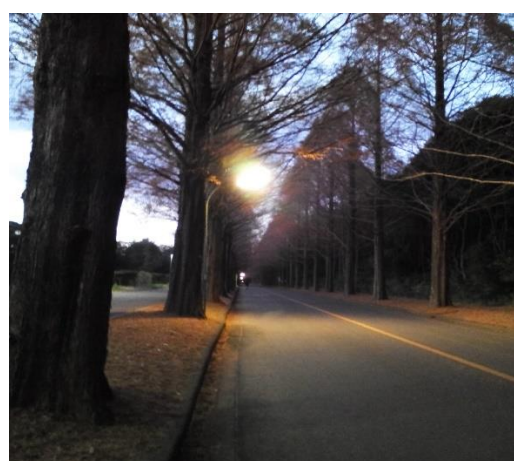

Nurul Syahirah Binti Shamsol Anuar, MJIT, Universiti Teknologi Malaysia

Minna-san konichiwa!

It is winter season right now in Japan and it's getting colder but still no snow falls in Tsukuba yet. I really hope that snow will fall in Tsukuba before going back to Malaysia this January 2015. Even though there is no snow, it can be said that the weather here is a little bit hard with strong wind every day and sometimes raining. This week there was an important seminar by Prof. Maseda Hideaki from Tokushima University. He's majoring in Molecular Biology and graduated from Tsukuba University. The seminar held from 18th to 19th December 2014, is very important as it is related to my research in terms of water quality and engineering. He also explained how the organism make new gene in the cells and how they adapt to the environment by using silent gene in the cells. It is very interesting to hear and getting new knowledge from him so that I can apply it in my research study. That's all from me. Till we meet again.....sayonara!

Seminar by Professor Maseda

Winter in Tsukuba